

Public Interest Fellowships for Deferred Incoming Associates

Some United States law firms are delaying the arrival of their Class of 2010 incoming associates until 2011. In order to capitalize on delayed law firm associates' skills and to offer them an opportunity to gain legal experience, Ciudadanos al Día (CAD) is offering public interest fellowships for delayed associates. The Public Interest Fellowship program is based on CAD's successful summer research and internship program through which outstanding law students have been invited to conduct research with CAD since 2003.

CAD's Public Interest Fellowship Program will offer delayed law firm associates a chance to continue their legal education, refine legal research and writing skills, deepen their understanding of their legal area of interest, learn first-hand about another culture's legal system, perfect Spanish language skills, and establish future business contacts. At the same time, fellows can assist in improving CAD and the impact we seek to achieve in terms of improving legal ethics and strengthening the rule of law in Peru.

Flexible CAD Legal Fellowship Programs

Peru faces weaknesses in enforcing legal ethics and the rule of law, high levels of corruption, and low levels of citizen trust in lawyers and the legal profession. CAD's Rule of Law Program addresses these challenges through a series of innovative interventions that change the incentives lawyers face to act ethically and capitalizes on the market power of national and international firms to join the fight against corruption and unethical legal practices. To date, CAD has pursued these goals from three directions: establishing a Pro Bono Clearinghouse, leading the creation of a private lawyer-formed Proposed Rules of Lawyer Conduct and Professional Responsibility, and instituting a novel Rule of Law Pledge for corporate legal departments. In collaboration with general counsels and law firm partners in Peru, next year CAD will begin the creation of the first Continuing Legal Education (CLE) Program in Peru.

CAD's Fellowship program is built on flexibility in order to match Fellows' skills and desires with CAD's needs and programs. In the Public Interest Fellowship Program, Fellows can work for any length of time, choose from a variety of topics and be based in one of various offices.
